INTRA-PARTY TILTS LOOM OVER LEAGUE

Reaction of Leaders Against Allegedly Anti- Administration Group Portends Sharp Clashes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—
Clearance over the American Liberty League, already manifest among democrats, became evident today in the republican "regular" ranks as well.
Despite one of its organizers being a potential G. O. P. presidential candidate in 1936, the former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley labeled the league "a smear-gang" trying to impose "minority rule." Hurley was known to be reflecting opinions harbored by some other republican leaders.

In a statement issued from his law office here, the Oklahoma became the first outstanding republican to comment formally on the young organization. It has been hailed by some democrats as designed to "obstruct" and "embarrass" the New Deal.

His announced purpose include to help President Roosevelt, not to hinder.

Shouse Rapped.
Hurley recalled what republicans
in the last administration attacked as the "Smear-Hoover" campaign, saying the league was headed by "the same man" who led that. The reference was to President J. Edgar Hoover, former executive chairman of the democratic national committee.

"This is a government by majorities," said the Hurley statement.

NEW COMMISSION OF NINE SELECTED

Better Government Body To Seek Improvements Asked by Grand Juries.

The personnel of the Better Government Commission, created by recommendation of the May-June grand jury, was announced Wednesday by R. E. L. Reynolds, foreman of the present Fulton county grand jury. The nine citizen members of the commission were named by Mr. Reynolds, W.
Eugene Harrington, John K. Ottley
and J. J. Scott, foreman of the three most recent Fulton county juries and of the present DeKalb jury, respectively.

Those citizen members who have accepted appointment on the commission are: Frank H. Neely, manager of Rich, Inc.; I. C. Miller, executive vice president of Gate City Cotton Mills; Dr. James R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College; Hugh E.
Lyndon, chairman of the local division
of Railway Conductors; Edgar Watkins, attorney; George A. Campbell, vice president and secretary of Atlanta Title & Trust Company;
George J. Yundt, vice president of Southern Bell Telephone Company;
Nelson Spratt, president of Spratt
Chair Company, and J. E. Zachary, farmer, of Fairburn.

The objective of the new body will be continuous work toward bringing about improvements recommended by the grand juries.

The four grand jury foremen will serve as ex-officio members of the commission, and upon any new grand jury coming in the new foreman will replace one of the ex-officio members.
Three new citizen members will be chosen at the end of each six-month period, to replace a like number.

According to Mr. Reynolds, the members have been chosen for their civic spirit, experience and lack of partisanship.

COMPLIANCE ARMY PLANS HARD DRIVE ON NRA VIOLATORS

Near-Rift in Recovery Administration Ranks Revealed as Two With- draw Resignations.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)— NRA compliance chiefs, estimating the inflow of complaints at 7,000 weekly,
were reported today to bear
down harder on violators of Blue Eagle code provisions.

Reorganization of the recovery administration, incidentally, was disclosed to have resulted in such new internal squabbles recently that two highly placed officials offered their resignations to Hugh S. Johnson.

This trouble, however, was quickly
smoothed over and the two principals, Blackwell Smith, assistant general counsel, and Leon Henderson, chief of the planning and research division,
are still on the job.

Another step in the reshaping was taken with the grouping of all textile,
apparel, leather and fur codes into one division.

A resume of NRA's compliance
work has shown that the recovery organization itself has snatched away
Blue Eagle from about 300 employers.
This number does not include birds
removed by state directors for violations of service trade codes. Nor does it disclose the sizeable number of cases
that have been settled through adjustments, without publicity.

Few Reach Capital.
Only a small fraction of the 7,000 complaints received weekly for non-compliance ever reach Washington.
Most are thrown out as unjustified
and a number of others are adjusted
by state compliance directors.

The NRA compliance division now

Bar Adopts Program For Anti-Crime War

Five-Point National Campaign Will Be Con- cerned Mainly With Improvement of Criminal Law Procedure.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 29.—(P)— Heeding the pleas of various leaders of the profession, the American Bar Association today armed itself with a five-point program for a national offensive on crime.

By almost unanimous vote the association in convention adopted the criminal law recommendations offered by the executive committee and the section of criminal law.

The action followed a portrayal of the increasing menace of the "black army" of criminals to the nation's life and a call for leadership in the war on crime from the legal profession.

The program represents the product of a year of discussion and deliberation as to the part the bar association will play in the fight to curb crime. It is concerned mainly with the improvement of criminal law procedure and attempts to cut down
what was termed the "advantage"
which criminals now enjoy when brought before the bars of justice.

Only two parts of the program were subject to debate, but they were given wide approval when put to a vote. One part recommended that state and local bar associations rid the profession of dishonest and unethical practitioners. The other recommends permitting the court and counsel in a criminal trial to comment to the jury on the failure of a defendant to testify in his own defense.

PICKFORD MARITAL RUMORS REVIVED

Mary Evades Denial of Reconciliation With Her Actor Husband.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 29.—(P)— Mary Pickford's remark "I won't deny it," when asked whether she and Douglas Fairbanks had composed their marital differences started a new series of rumors in filmdom today.

Friends of the famous movie couple insisted Miss Pickford would drop her divorce suit in the next few days.
They said they understood Fairbanks was about to move back to "Pick-fair," the palatial home built by the couple in the first years of their romance. Miss Pickford has been living there since their estrangement.

"I won't deny it," she said. "I can't discuss it now," said Miss Pickford late last night in answer to a newsmen's question about whether she and Fairbanks had made up.
Neither Doug nor Mary could be reached today for amplification of Miss Pickford's statement.

Fairbanks was at "Pickfair" until late last night. He had dinner with Mary and afterward they sat in the private projection room and saw a new film, "The Affairs of Cellini." It was the showing of the film that the newsmen called. Whether Fairbanks left Pickfair later was not ascertained.

Miss Pickford confirmed the fact Fairbanks was with her. She looked toward the drawing room and the reporter saw "Doug." The actor appeared startled and darted down a corridor.

One of her friends said Miss Pickford had finally decided to Fairbanks' desire to travel. This supposedly was a factor in their separation. Miss Pickford was with her.

Mr. Tharin took issue with the statements of G. T. Finley, chairman of the Atlanta lodge of the B. R. T., who last week scored the committee
for its endorsement of the governor.

Mr. Whitaker has been in the department of industrial relations for eight years and for years has been recognized as one of the outstanding labor leaders of Georgia and the United States. At present he is president of the Association of Labor Officials of the United States and Canada, having been elected for the year at the annual convention of the organization at Chicago in September, 1933. This group is composed of all of the federal labor officials of the United States and the dominion labor officials of Canada.

Mr. Whitaker was secretary of the Georgia Federation of Labor from 1916, when he resigned to become affiliated with the United States department of labor during the war.

From March, 1921, to June, 1926,
he was secretary of the Georgia Fed-resigned to become affiliated with the United States department of labor

during the war.

LEAD OF SINCLAIR MOUNTS HEAVILY; S. C. WETS VICTORS

Bilbo and Blease Win Runover Places; Cali- fornia Primary Win- ner's Majority Surprises

By The United Press.

Upton Sinclair, socialist pamphleteer, has blanketed his opponents
for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in California.

Two men close to the Roosevelt administration—George Creel and Justus Wardell—were left far behind, and democratic leaders in Washington announced they would throw their support to Sinclair in the November election.

Sinclair announced plans to visit President Roosevelt and discuss with him the liberal platform of social legislation which he will espouse if he defeats Governor Frank F. Merriam in the fall election.

Mr. Roosevelt, in Hyde Park, N. Y., refused to comment on Sinclair's victory, but Postmaster-General James
A. Farley said:

"If Sinclair is the choice of the party,
there's nothing else we can do but congratulate him."

Senator Hiram Johnson, candidate for governor in California, won re-nomination easily. Sinclair was expected to win, but the size of his vote surprised many political observers.

For the democratic gubernatorial nomination: Sinclair, 558,744; Creel, 173,810; Wardell, 35,338.

More than 285,682
votes over his closest opponent, former Governor C. C. Young.

Many leading democrats in Washington feared Sinclair's victory might lead to a change in the Roosevelt administration.

FARM PRICES NEAR PRE-WAR 'PARITY'

Goal of Raising Return to 1910-14 Average "Vir- tually Achieved."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—
Donald R. Richberg reported to President Roosevelt today that farm prices have risen to within 5 per cent of the famous "pre-war parity," which the administration has been striving to reach.

The head of the president's executive council made plain that his figures include benefit payments received by farmers through the AAA. He also stressed that the drought slashed some major crops and "therefore the high prices do not mean a fully corresponding increase in farm income."

He warned that for complete farm recovery "it is essential that there be a revival in industrial production and more extensive re-employment." In his first report, last Sunday, Richberg claimed marked industrial gains, and in particular, the re-employment of 4,120,000 persons.

Pre-war parity—meaning the real price level of 1910 to 1914 as measured in terms of purchasing power—
has been cited as a goal of the Roosevelt agricultural program.

Other Points Cited.

The report also declared:
1. Farm income for 1934 appears likely to exceed 1933 by about 10 per cent. While this was a "substantial gain," Richberg said, "it leaves farm income still far below the levels of 1929-30."

2. Rental and benefit payments made to farmers totaled $311,000,000
between August, 1933, and June, 1934.

3. Farm income aggregated $5,083-000,000 for 1933-34 as compared with $3,881,000,000 for 1932-33.

4. Surpluses of major crops have been cut to about normal but the drought has "laid the basis for new surpluses." Control of crops should continue.

5. Government agencies now held more than 25 per cent of all farm debt as compared with 12.1 per cent at the beginning of 1933.

Responsibility of AAA.
Richberg first noted that the AAA
is "the agency charged with responsibility of restoring the equitable balance between the price of things the farmers sell and the price of things the farmers buy."

"Surpluses of agricultural commodities were among the principal price-depressing influences," Richberg said.
"In March, 1933, prices of seven basic commodities were 61 per cent of their 1910-1914 level."

Prices of seven commodities originally designated as basic have risen from 51 per cent of the 1910-1914 relationship to 95 per cent, exclusive of benefit payments, he added.

"Including benefit payments, the farm price of these seven commodities is now 100 per cent of their 1910-1914
level."

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(P)—
President Roosevelt and Upton Sin-

gubernatorial nominee, arranged today
for a conference with the stipulation
by the summer White House that it would be on a business and not political basis.

Sinclair, former socialist and author of the "epic plan" to end poverty in California, asked for the meeting.
Marvin H. McIntyre, presidential secretary, said it would occur, but he stated the agreement must be that the president is not being drawn into a state campaign.

The president, after a luncheon
conference with Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, ordered his return to London next month to seek some understanding with Great Britain and Japan for a successful naval limitations conference next year.

Looking hopefully into the future,
the president said he would not be able to convene soon he should proceed there at once.

Talking with newsmen after the regular semi-weekly press conference,
Mr. Roosevelt smiled at suggestions of immediate currency inflation on the basis of government use of the $2,800-000,000 gold profit received from the dollar devaluation. This money, he emphasized, would be used ultimately
and that meant in the far distant fu-

TWO AUGUSTA MILLS VOTE AGAINST STRIKE

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 29.—(P)—
Two mills announced here today that their employees had voted overwhelmingly against a strike. A notice posted on the bulletin board of the Langley-Bath mills
just across the river in South Carolina said 1,287 employees had voted against a walkout and only 25
for it. The King mill in Augusta announced its workers had voted 1,941 to 16 against a strike.

The Langley-Bath vote was on the question of whether or not employees would leave if a general strike was called.

By the Associated Press.

Efforts to stave off a general textile strike collapsed Wednesday when the Cotton Textile Institute, representing the manufacturers, refused to confer with spokesmen for the employees at the invitation of the national labor relations board.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers, announced that one official order for a general strike, beginning September 4 and affecting between 700,000 and 800,000 workmen,
was being prepared and that he did not "expect anything at this late date
could stop it."

Chairman Garrison, of the national labor relations board, stated, nevertheless, that he had no intention of drawing from discussions but that,
"unless something develops" he would make no formal request to postpone the walkout.

Workers want the national cotton textile code amended to provide for a 10 per cent increase in wages and a 5 per cent decrease in the hours of mill hands.

George A. Sloan, president of the institute, said, in declining to meet employee spokesmen today, that acquiesce to the labor demands would set a precedent which "would bring about absolute destruction of the code system."

Governor Ira C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, announced he had dispatched a company of militia to Seneca, S. C., to protect the Lonsdale mills. The Lonsdale mills have been since workmen quit seven weeks ago.

PEACE ATTEMPTS FOR TEXTILES FAIL

dered an election September 6 at the West Virginia Rail Company's plant to determine who should represent the employees in dealing with the company.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A temporary paralysis of the nation's cotton textile industry became inevitable tonight when efforts to avert a general strike collapsed.

Textile manufacturers spurred a federal offer to attend a peace meeting here with labor leaders. A union strike committee at once prepared to dispatch before noon tomorrow formal orders for a walkout of nearly half a million workers.

Work in the cotton textile mills probably will cease Friday night. The strike call likely will be for next Tuesday morning, the first working day after the Labor Day week-end.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, approved the projected strike by the nation's cotton textile workers, saying it was justified because the cotton code failed to realize for labor the purpose of the national recovery act.

Violence Hinted.

Hints of violence increased, particularly in the south. A company of national guardsmen was ordered to duty at the Lonsdale mill in Seneca, S. C., where a strike has been in progress.

"We are prepared for planned violence," said Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee. Gorman declared every precaution would be taken to conduct an orderly strike, but asserted:

"We are prepared for trickery and violence. We have reports which indicate planned violence. I refer to reports from our representatives about the stocking of arms and tear gas. Private detectives also are hovering over the field like vultures."

Cotton Garment Crisis.

An upheaval also was threatened in another great industry.

Cotton garment manufacturers have defied a presidential order calling for a 38 instead of a 40-hour week without pay decreases for 200,000 employees. Workers in the industry are threatening a general strike unless the order is obeyed on October 1, its effective date.

Leaders and 'Battleground' for Textile Strike

At the left, above, Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers and chairman of the committee which has called a strike which may affect over 700,000 workers, is shown in Washington in telephone conversation with his field representatives. Gorman said it was "highly" possible the walkout would include workers in silk, rayon and woolen mills as well as cotton textile mills. This map shows the concentration of the nation's cotton textile mills in southern and eastern states. The figures in states shaded by dots indicate the number of "spindles" active in those states as of July (the average is 60 spindles per worker). The more heavily shaded strip extending from Virginia to Georgia is the "Piedmont," the south's most highly industrialized area. The two black dots are Gaston county (North Carolina) and Greenville county (South Carolina), two of the largest concentrations of the textile industry in the world. Lower photo, members of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers are shown as they met in Washington to perfect arrangements for similar strikes in the silk, rayon and woolen and worsted industries. ops" he would make no request for postponement of the strike.

In scattered parts of the country employers already were preparing for the strike by shutting down their mills. The Sunset Cotton mill, in Selma, Ala., and the Greystone mill, at Uniontown, Ala., were closed today. The Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, at Manchester, N. H., closed its chemical departments yesterday and other mills were preparing to shut down momentarily.

Troops to Seneca.

An exception, however, was the Lonsdale mill, in Seneca, S. C., to which troops were ordered today. The company, after a seven-week shutdown because of a strike, was to open today or tomorrow and Governor Blackwell, of South Carolina, said the mobilization of troops was a precautionary measure which followed an appeal for protection from workers.

The governor said plain clothesmen who investigated had reported the situation serious.

"I did it regretfully," he said of the call for troops, "but it seemed the only thing to do."

From the south today came exhibits of wage envelopes which the union planned to submit in support of its contention that wage levels were not maintained. Gorman showed the envelope of a loom fixer in a mill in Durham, N. C., as proof of a wage of $12.90 for 30 hours work. The wage, Gorman said, should have been about $30 for that work. Other envelopes, for semi-skilled workers, showed $5.60 for 22 hours work; $7.56 for 24 hours and $10.08 for 30 hours.

As a spur to the workers, the strike committee has prepared a huge silk banner for the first local union to report a 100 per cent walkout.

Green's Statement.

In behalf of the textile workers, Green said in his statement that the code not only had failed to raise wages but had failed to increase employment. He added:

"We are facing this issue, shall guidance of future developments remain in the hands of industry under the national recovery administration or shall it be transferred to the relief administration?"

Speaking on the same program, Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, exhorted the cotton workers to "beware of disruptive elements; as you walk out be orderly, and remain orderly, always."

Gorman summarized the grievances of the workers and as a final warning, told them:

"Particularly beware of communist intrigue. Keep your ranks free from communism and communist trickery. Stamp it out wherever it raises its head. Be stern about this."

Green asserted that while the cotton textile code, first to be adopted under NRA, was being drawn, mills were working overtime to lay up large stores of reserves.

"In the public hearing," he said, "there was a sharp contrast between the industry's desire to operate profitably in the interest of owners and security holders and its efforts to force mill operatives to work at the very lowest profit to themselves."

He said the stretch-out had been employed by manufacturers to reduce the income of workers.

"With the limitation of machine hours prescribed by the code," he said, "came demand for increase in output per hand. Men who in 1929 were operating from 18 to 20 looms are now in some cases operating from 44 to 56 looms of the same type; battery hands who before the code were operating 24 batteries now operate 42."

All these cases of stretch-out mean less employment.

"For those still employed, the pace at which they must work is so great that they are speedily worn out. The unions are in receipt of hundreds of letters from men and women who after years of work are discharged because they cannot keep up with the constantly increasing speed."

Green said the textile workers were protesting against low wages, insecurity of employment, and denial of the right to organize and bargain collectively.

DUCK MILL EMPLOYEES

WALK OUT AT MACON, GA., Aug. 29.—(AP)—National strike threats advanced toward

How Factions Stand On Proposed Strike

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP) Here is how industry and labor stand on the proposed textile strike:

George A. Sloan, president of Cotton Textile Institute: "The government, the public and the industry are now confronted with the threat that unless the law is changed and changed immediately the industry will be closed by strike. . . . If it is to be an approved and successful weapon for changing the code . . . it will put a premium on force and violence as instruments of law-making."

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the union's strike committee: "Now the air is clear. There seemingly are no more subterfuges to which employers can resort and they stand at least out of the open. . . . I honestly think there are some mill owners who do not know the recovery act is law and I am certain that a great many do not know the language of section 7-A."

Here are the union demands which textile manufacturers have declined to meet:

1. A five-day, 30-hour week with no reduction in present weekly wages; graduated minimum wage scales for skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled workers; uniform wages for all sections of industry.
2. Limitation of work load for operations in various divisions of industry.
3. Reinstatement of all workers fired because of union activity.
4. Recognition of the United Textile Workers of America as the bargaining agency of workers in the industry, and the signing of an agreement governing labor relations between union and industry.
5. Creation of a mutually satisfactory arbitration tribunal with power to make binding decisions.

Macon late this afternoon as employees in the Adams-Swirls Duck Mill, closed out on the night shift and officials announced the plant was closed indefinitely.

It was the second local textile plant closed by a walkout. Pickets still parade daily at the Atlantic Cotton Mill, which was closed after a walkout last week.

Only the Willingham Cotton Mill and three local mills of the Bibb Manufacturing Company remain open here, pending developments in the strike called for Saturday.

MANUFACTURERS TURN DOWN BOARD'S PEACE OVERTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(AP)—In defiant words, the cotton textile manufacturers turned down today the peace overtures of the national labor relations board and refused to meet with union leaders.

Answering the invitation of Lloyd K. Garrison, its chairman, to meet with the board and leaders of the United Textile Workers in an effort to avert the threatened industrial-wide strike, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, messaged:

"The government, the public and the industry are now confronted with the threat that unless the law is changed and changed immediately, the industry will be closed by strike and kept closed until these changes are made."

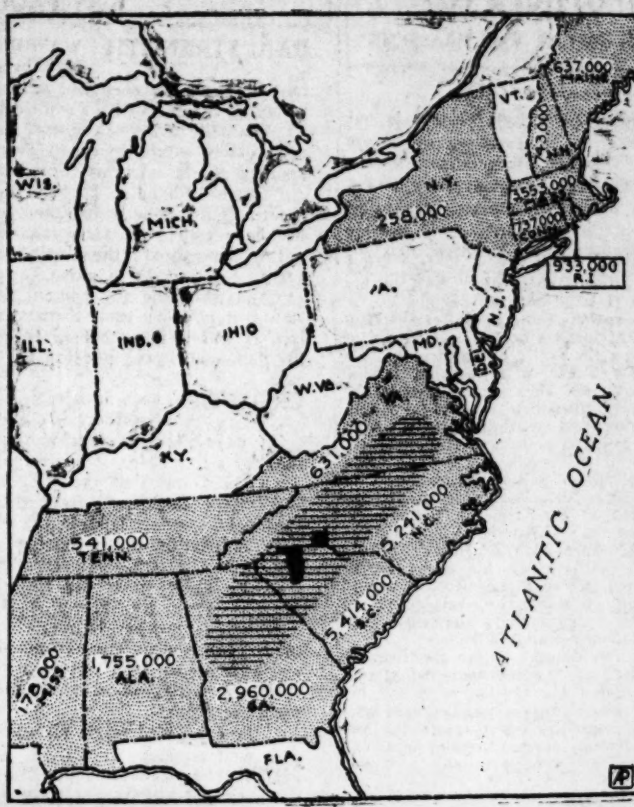

"The character of such a strike is clear. If it is to be an approved and successful weapon for changing the code or forcing governmental action it will set a precedent for strikes in every other industry."

"It will put a premium on force and violence as instruments of law-making instead of the orderly processes of the NRA. . . ."

"We are convinced that code amendment under threat of strike would be absolute destruction of the code system."

ASK FOR MOROLINE

WHITE PETROLEUM JELLY

for the cotton textile industry was formulated after a full hearing at which representatives of labor and of consumers were heard.

"2. That code, upon approval of the president, became a law of the land with precisely the same effect as if it had been enacted by congress."

Sloan added that under the threat of strike, the union now demands fundamental alteration, including reduction of maximum hours and increase in minimum pay.

Also, he said, "there is a demand by the group threatening the strike that they be recognized as entitled to speak for all the employees of the textile industry and that we deal with them on behalf of all employees."

"Such a demand," Sloan continued, "cannot be considered for two reasons:

"In the first place, we have no reason to believe that this group represents anything more than a minority of the employees of the industry or that this strike represents their wishes or that it could be made effective except by intimidation."

"Further, neither the code authority nor the Cotton Textile Institute nor anyone else is authorized by the 1200 individual mills of this industry to deal for them in their relations with their employees."

Concluding, Sloan added:

"A strike with certain accompanying intimidation is in our view an improper method of forcing employees into the selection of their representatives in collective bargaining as it is of forcing the code authority and of the government into amendment."

"In view of this situation we are unable to enter into conference with the group threatening the strike. I shall be glad to meet with your board personally and give a more detailed explanation of our position to its members tomorrow or at any other time that you may desire."

Leaders of the textile union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, have already consented to meet with the labor relations board and the manufacturers.

Sloan, who is chairman of the cotton textile code authority, set forth the views of the manufacturers as follows:

"1. The code of fair competition

THE MUNITIONS PROBE.

The determination of the senate
munitions investigation committee to probe thoroughly into alleged connections and working agreements between munitions interests in this country and in Europe will receive universal approval.

The record of the munitions masters of Europe is too black for Americans to countenance any cooperation in their nefarious schemes
by units of the arms industry in this country. If such co-operation has, or does, exist both the people and the government of the United States should have the full facts in order that there shall not exist a threat to the peace and welfare of this country such as that which has hung over the nations of continental Europe.

The European munitions trust, headed by Sir Basil Zaharoff, has been termed the "maker and breaker of kings," because it has set up dummy rulers, only to inspire revolt against them that munitions plants might be enriched.
Wars have been secretly promoted and thrones overthrown that the munitions trust might reap profits
out of taxes levied for the purpose
of buying arms and ammunition.

There has been no blacker record
in modern times than the ruthlessness with which European munitions kings have fanned racial racials, encouraged insurrection and stirred peaceful peoples to attack
each other. War with its toll in death, suffering and destruction has been the favorite method of these conscienceless men to increase their profits from the manufacture of instruments for the snuffing out of human life and the leveling of the creations of human brains and hands.

No American industry must be permitted to have secret understandings that may result even in indirect co-operation with the nefarious policies that have been so largely responsible for the unhappy condition of Europe for nearly a half century. In all probability, no such agreements exist, but the charges that they do have become so outspoken and continuous that their accuracy must now be established, once and for all.

GEORGE V. GRESS.

Few men have contributed more
to the happiness of Atlanta children than George V. Gress, whose death occurred Tuesday in Jacksonville,
where he had lived for the past 20 years. For nearly a half century thousands of children annually have gained both pleasure and instruction in wild life from visits to the zoo at Grant park.

Mr. Gress came to Georgia in early life from his native state of Pennsylvania and while still a young man amassed a considerable fortune
through trading in south Georgia timber lands and in the conduct of an extensive lumber business. While still in his forties he established a residence in Atlanta.

In 1891 a circus became stranded
in Atlanta and was sold at auction for the debts it had incurred.
Mr. Gress attended the auction, chiefly out of curiosity. When the various animals belonging to the circus were put under the hammer,
it occurred to him that it would be a fine thing for his adopted city to have these animals as the nucleus of a zoo.

He forthwith bid in the animals
and at the next meeting of council
offered them to the city as a gift,
with the sole proviso that as the animals died they should be replaced by others, thus making the zoo a permanent institution for the city. The offer was accepted, and from this beginning has been developed one of the south's finest collections of animals.

Mr. Gress further indicated his devotion to the city which he chose
in middle life as his place of residence, despite the fact that his business interests were located elsewhere, through the purchase of the great circular painting depicting the Battle of Atlanta. First exhibited at the Atlanta Exposition in 1895,

this painting, presented to the city
by Mr. Gress shortly after the close of the exposition, has become, as the Atlanta Cyclopedia, one of the world's best-known works of historic art.

It has been viewed by hundreds of thousands of people during the past 40 years and is now
one of the community's best assets.
Unassuming and unobtrusive
by nature, Mr. Gress shunned a conspicuous part in the public life
of the city, but his contributions to its material and cultural development will cause him to be remembered as one of the useful of pioneer Atlantans.

CALLING THE SOVIETS' HAND.

The United States and Japan occupy somewhat similar positions in the negotiations the two countries have been carrying on with the Russian government for many months,
although the negotiations are, in some respects, of widely different nature.

The Russo-American conversations have as their objective the settling of the debts owed by the soviets to this country, Washington having insisted upon such a settlement as a necessary forerunner to closer relations. The negotiations have been strung out over many months because the soviets do not want to make good for American property confiscated within their borders when all property was nationalized in 1918.

American citizens have filed with the state department at Washington claims for payment of approximately $400,000,000, and it is fairly certain that the debts agreement with Russia will not be consummated until some satisfactory understanding as to these claims is reached.

The impasse in the negotiations between Russia and Japan over the Chinese Northern railroad is chiefly as the result of the soviet government's dickering over prices. In the case of the United States, the soviets are endeavoring to get out of paying, while with Japan they are insisting upon a price as much too high as that Japan offers to pay is too low.

Money is the root of the evil in both instances, and the prolongation
of the negotiations is, in the last analysis, incident to dickering over prices—a trading process which in the case of private corporations would be regarded as natural, but which,
because governments, instead
of corporations, are concerned,
has been advanced frequently
during the past few months as evidence of strained diplomatic relations.

There is no possibility whatsoever of any serious friction between the United States and Russia over the debts situation, and the probability is that the same thing is true
of the Russo-Japanese negotiations.
The situation is simply that Russia wants something of the United States, and we have told the soviets that they must adjust their debts to us before we will consider their requests. If no basis of agreement is reached on the debts, certainly no ground for trouble has been created.

Likewise, Japan has offered,
through Manchukuo, to buy Russia's half of the Chinese Northern railroad—a line that was of vital value to Russia when she dominated Manchuria. Now Japan is boss of the territory and Russia's stake in the railroad is of practically no value to her, but she is evidently determined to get every dollar possible out of the sale of the road.

The dickering over the railroad
has been accompanied by considerable bluffing by both Japan and Russia, and it is not surprising that the various moves, although based on established principles of business
trading, have given rise to repeated predictions that war was in the offing.

What has happened is that the soviets are evidently trying to do some shrewd trading—and so far their hands have been called at every turn by both the United States and Japan. Only the methods have differed, we having adopted an attitude of sitting steady in the boat until Russia comes across,
while Japan has resorted to the expedient of clapping in jail a few dozen Russian employees of the Chinese Eastern.

The probability is that there will be no serious trouble and that the trading will finally reach a point where the nations involved will be able to get together.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Ludendorff's Hate.

General Ludendorff refused to put the flag at half-mast on his house
when Marshal Hindenburg was buried. The correspondent of the Parisian newspaper, Oeuvre, who called on him for an expression of opinion
on Hindenburg's historical significance was told: "I have said all I have to say about that man in my books. I have nothing to add."

Ludendorff could never forgive Hindenburg for taking the sole credit of winning the battle of Tannenberg. He challenged the field marshal in his books to tell the German people the truth. Hindenburg remained silent.
But the nazis who buried the old man
with so much pomp and circumstance
did spill the beans of the time when Hitler ran against Hindenburg as candidate for the presidency. They charged at that time in their newspapers that Hindenburg had had no actual share in the winning of the battle with which his name is associated. At that time, too, it should be remembered, the nazis could not punish untruth with impunity. Still Hindenburg remained silent.

At the funeral Hitler glorified the marshal as "the unconquered victor"
and closed his oration with the cry
with which the ancient Teutonic warriors committed their chiefs to their last resting place: "Ascend into Valhalla."

The True Story.
Dr. Joseph Goebbels, the little propaganda minister of Germany, wrote in his newspaper, Der Angriff, that Marshal Foch admitted the superiority of Hindenburg. You will vainly search Foch's memoirs for any expression of his opinion. Curiously said and wrote was this: "We knew Hindenburg was a colossal facade, a false front, but behind him there were some real officers."

To learn why this retired general,
who had failed to pass the staff examinations was elevated to the command of the eastern front and later to the supreme command, we must go back to the days of the battle of Tan-nenberg. The Russians were pouring westward. Their advance was compared to the irresistible progress of a steam train. The Germans were paralyzed with fear," said Paris. "The Russians, led by the mesmerized Huns," said London.

Both Paris and London were wrong. In the first place the Germans were no more Huns than the French were British. In the second place, they had a good reason not to worry. General Ludendorff had worked out the plans to halt the Russian advance. They were perfect. What the Germans did was to lure the eastern army under Rennenkampf
into the most gruesome trap in military history. But the Kaiser and the princes refused to appoint Ludendorff
to the command. He was too young.

He also was, and still is, a man of irascible, fiercely tempered character. No officer could collaborate with him. The Kaiser therefore, who was a general who would nominally take the command and who would not interfere with Ludendorff's brilliant strategy.

First, General Hoffmann was summoned. He tried to work with Luden-dorff, but gave up. Then Hindenburg was called. He came at once from his retirement. He was the perfect
"false front." Ludendorff writes in his memoirs that Hindenburg went to bed at 9 o'clock no matter what was happening at the front. Nine o'clock in the evening—that was the time when Ludendorff was in his most feverish moods.

The Facade.

To those who know that Hindenburg did not actively participate for months and months in the administration of the country except to set his name under documents which his secretaries submitted, it will not come as a surprise when Hitler announces that there will be no change.
The real Hindenburg of the last year
and a half was not Paul Hindenburg,
but Oskar Hindenburg, the marshal's son, an intriguing, unscrupulous and wholly Hitler's creature.
The old man knew little of what was going on in the world and like hundreds of the German people, he knew less yet of what is going on inside the country.

Oskar kept people from coming to his father. He could not prevent them, but he could prevent them
from coming one day to tell the president of the tozbozian slide of the German political and economic situation. Oskar Hindenburg, Hitler at once of what Hitler called "the false front."

Schleicher's fall officer in the given Oskar the estate at Neudeck and Oskar was grateful. Schleicher was murdered.

In public clinics where the raffish
and the underworld and a certain type
of the elite seek treatment at the expense of the city or state, the moron
who exhibits a specimen of the tattoo
artist's work accurately places himself in the social status list. It is a sorry confession of degradation. It is something our system of education rather encourages, by conspiring with the quacks and crooks to keep the rising generation ignorant.

Once having been so mutilated, if the victim is a defect, it is not degrading grace it doesn't matter so much, though it would surely be better for the state if such individuals were not permitted to roam at large.
But often the tattooing is done at a time when the victim is incapable of understanding the enormity of the offense. Later, with sobriety, comes the wish to hide the shameful tattoo.

Surgical excision of the mutilated
skin and grafting of skin from a less conspicuous area is the best way to dispose of the blemish in most cases.

Where the tattoo covers a large surface of skin there are two alternatives. Either an attempt to erase the design by skilled tattooing to match
as nearly as possible the natural color
of the skin, or tattooing with acid
which sets up inflammation and a dry superficial scab which is thrown off leaving a white scar. Or the careful use of a caustic ointment will bring about similar sloughing of the dried or stained skin.

In München medizinshe Wochenschrift Dr. H. in der Ströth describes in detail the use of such an ointment
in the removal of tattooing. He says

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

RAIL STRENGTH WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The railroads
may have lost a lot of business, but certainly not any of their old money business. They still know how to lay an inside rail on a political curve.

The delicate way they have been railing the New Deal for needed relief lately would do credit even to the genius of an Ivy Lee. (He handles public relations for some of the best of them.)

You only have to go back a couple of weeks to the time when the roads felt they were down to their last spike. Their executives had been tipped privately that New Deal Co-ordinator Eastman was out to co-ordinate them into government ownership. They were scared stiff, afraid to move.

And when the government rammed a financially impossible pension system down their throats, they only gulped a few times meekly. It was months before they accumulated gumption enough to file suit against the pension act in court.

CROSSTIE Fear of stirring up the New Dealers also delayed for a few days after the pension suit was filed, the roads applied to the ICC for a flat 10 per cent freight rate boost.

They knew well the ICC will not give it to them. In fact, there have been leaks from the ICC indicating that a majority of the commissioners is dead set against any increase whatsoever. The broad application in the face of that situation was, however, only preliminary to the really striking bit of strategy.

It could not have been a mere coincidence that, a few days later,
the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad announced that "in common with other railroads" it would have to begin firing some men because costs of operation have been going up.

That genteel hint will have the same effect on the New Dealers as if a cross-tie had been dropped on President Roosevelt's foot. It simply means:

"No increased rates; no work."

HINT The general supposition among those in the know here is that the roads lately have found out government ownership is no longer a live possibility. Where they found it out, no one knows. Perhaps they read Professor Moley's magazine "Today."
If they do, they saw a very pointed editorial in it about ten days ago. This editorial by Mr. Roosevelt's best adviser said that the New Deal had not done right by the railroads; that there should be less talk of government ownership; that the pension act was too hastily concocted; that a helping hand should now be lent.

Simultaneously, the boys at the political switches here began to hear rumors that Mr. Eastman might resign. These rumors are not accredited, chiefly because Mr. Eastman knows more about the roads than the railroads do and the New Deal cannot afford to let him go.

Nevertheless, it all dovetails into the main hidden point that a change in policy toward the railroads is at hand. That change is being forced by as beautiful a series of maneuvers on the part of the roads as any publicity man would ever hope to see.

The change probably will not include increased freight rates, but it will include a reorganization of the pension system to provide ways for financing it. Also, legislation at the next session to regulate highway and waterway competition.

SLY Apparently Donald Richberg told the truth when he announced there were 23 slum clearance projects under way.
No one knew there were any more than three.

It seems that the PWA has gone secretly into 20 cities and started slum clearance projects without letting any of the cities know about it.

The reason is that land must be bought. The PWA has found out that, as soon as it announces a slum clearance project, land prices start going up. Property owners get dizzy ideas about what their property is worth.

So Mr. Ickes is working on a scheme whereby he goes into cities and buys up around 70 per cent of the land he needs before making any announcement. With that much land in hand, he can condemn the rest at his own price.

NOTES You can safely lay a little bet that Der Fuere will shortly seek to get a new treaty of friendship with the vatican in advance of the Saar elections. He hopes to swing the Catholic votes there around to Germany. The belief here is that he will fail to get the treaty.

Friends of President Roosevelt's former sugar adviser, Charles Taussig, are congratulating him on the new Cuban treaty. It could hardly have been better for his molasses company.

Bernard Baruch's forthcoming autobiography may not tell all, but he kept two stenographers busy in relays taking it down during his recent European vacation.

Donald Richberg's associates have advised him that if he wants to get rid of General Johnson quietly all he has to do is induce a large corporation to offer the general a big private job. That may be done.

The First Job in Rebuilding Is To Clear Away the Junk

By Robert Quillen

Government efforts to "freeze out" utility companies illustrates the methods that business adopted to ruin itself.

A certain power company in a small city gives all the service required. But the men who control it made money by watering its stock —that is, they sold small investors five million dollars' worth of shares in a property worth only one million.

Now the company must charge too much for electricity in order to pay dividends on its watered stock.

The government enters the field, builds a new power plant, and offers to sell current far below the company's price.

What happens? There aren't enough consumers to support both plants—even if the company could meet the government's price. So the company sells out at the government's figure or goes bankrupt.

In either case the stockholders lose.

Wherever there are two mills to grind one turn of wheat, one of them must stand idle.

And that is the story and curse of American business.

General Johnson says that one factory is equipped to produce all the steel plows America uses. And competitors are able to produce six times as many.

That same condition is found in every line of production.

At one time there were 5,000 factories making radios. A baker's dozen survived and the others went broke. Which means that stockholders or banks took an enormous loss.

What is the lesson there for our factories equipped to supply a demand that is so easily enough to support one?

They can consolidate, or make ten bits of a cherry and continue part-time operation without profit, or engage in cut-throat competition and let the fittest survive.

In any case, the investors lose.

It isn't a matter of probable loss. The loss is there now. From one-half to four-fifths of our factory equipment is junk. There is nothing for it to do.

And the sooner we face the truth, reorganize the nation's business and take the inevitable loss, the sooner we shall reach bedrock, where all solid foundations begin.

BROKER'S PARIS HOME

IS ROBBED OF JEWELS

PARIS, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Paris
home of Norman Whitehouse, New York broker, was robbed of thousands of dollars' worth of jewels, money,
furs and clothing while Whitehouse was absent in Austria, police were advised today.

The method is so simple that the general practitioner can readily use it.
Of course the best that can be expected is a smooth scar in place of the four weeks. The treatment requires four weeks.

BAR WILL LAUNCH ANTI-CRIME WAR

local and state bar associations of committees to improve and criticize police and prosecutors, and for appointment of committees to obtain the adoption of model criminal code.
The plan suggests that extra jurors
be impaneled to avoid mistrials
should a juror become incapacitated.
The trial on information he permitted, that jury verdicts by less than unanimous vote except in major felonies be sanctioned, that the prosecutor be advised in advance of alibi
and insanity pleas and that comment on the defendant's failure to testify be privileged.

Keenan paraded the specter of John Dillinger before the bar and declared that so long as the gunman can expect a cheer instead of a jeer from the public he will play his deadly trade.

He chided the public for glorifying criminals. He said he could not comprehend the applause with which a Washington theater audience greeted Dillinger's picture on the screen.
"A police, mind you, for a coward and a killer—applause for a man who had snuffed out the lives of husbands and fathers without the blinking of an eye—applause for one of the most loathsome creatures in the annals of crime," he commented.

He asked that all classes of citizens
band together to combat the criminal,
and added:

"So long as the problems of crime and its repression are left to . . .
social workers, policemen, prosecutors,
judges and prison wardens—and so long as the great body of citizenry remains indifferent, hostile or ignorant,
we can look for little improvement."

Best Plays "Present Trends."
Representative James J. Beck, Philadelphia Republican, expressed fear for the life of the constitution of the United States if present trends
continue.

Beck, chairman of the committee on American citizenship, pleaded for greater study of the constitution in colleges.

"The association cannot impress upon the colleges and universities that the first requisite is a knowledge of the history of the constitution . . .
then for my part I fear for the constitution," he said.

The speaker said the opinion that the supreme court can defend the constitution is a gigantic illusion. The court is the enemy of the people, he said, and it can only defend certain principles of the constitution," he contended.

"The salvation of the constitution lies in the people themselves, and in them alone," he said.

Beck was given prolonged applause
when he warned:

"Defeat of the constitution of the United States and the Union itself
will not long survive."

The committee's report was adopted with dissenting votes. The resolutions pertaining to the exclusion,
admission and deportation of aliens,
but later reconsidered and ordered it recommitted.

Defeat of the measure, said Charles
E. Rogers, of Fort Atkinson, Wis., would place the bar on record in favor of "harsh and unfair" treatment of aliens.

CONGRESSMEN TO ASK LOWER LIQUOR TAXES

Import Duties Also Would Be Cut in Move To Combat Bootlegging.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Slashes in federal liquor taxes and import duties to eliminate the bootlegger will be proposed in the next congress by a group of representatives who led the repeal fight.

The fact that the treasury has not reaped the harvest of revenue expected from liquor sales and the continuance of large-scale bootlegging promoted the move.

Proposals to restore the old domestic rate of $1.10 a gallon on 100 proof liquor, and to slice the $5 a gallon tariff by 50 per cent are being considered by experts attached to the house ways and means committee.

Secretary Morgenthau has indicated he is opposed at present to any reduction in the existing $2 domestic tax. He is seeking to kill the illicit traffic by a large force of internal revenue agents.

The representatives plan to await developments in Morgenthau's campaign. If it is successful between now and January 1, they may delay their drive for lower taxes. Should he fail, the leaders say they will push for a reduction.

They point to the recommendation of J. H. Choate Jr., director of the alcohol control administration, who said the bootlegger could be eliminated by lowering imports.

AUDITORIUM FINANCED BY U. S. SOUGHT AGAIN

Another attempt to procure $1,500,000 to construct a new municipal auditorium will be made Tuesday by Alderman I. Gloer Hailey, he announced Wednesday.

Hailey will ask council to approve a resolution calling for establishment of a joint council and citizens' committee to seek to finance the project with federal governmental aid.

Details of the financing program have not yet been evolved, but Hailey said he would have one ready "at the proper time."

J. J. Spalding Sr., 78, At His Office as Usual

J. J. Spalding Sr., a leading member of the Atlanta bar for many years celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday Wednesday by attending to his duties as a member of the law firm of Spalding, MacDougal & Sibley as usual. Wednesday night a family dinner was held at the home on Peachtree road in his honor.

Mr. Spalding was born in Morganville, Union county, Kentucky. He came to Atlanta on January 1, 1882, as a practicing attorney and established the firm of King & Spalding, which stood until 1926, when the present firm was formed following the death of his partner.

Georgia's 4-Year Population Gain Smallest Recorded From South

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Georgia's population was shown today by a bureau of census estimate to have increased to 2,911,000 on July 1 this year from 2,908,506 recorded in the 1930 census.

The gain, only 2,494, was the smallest reported from any southern state.

Only one state of the 48, Vermont, showed a smaller increase in population. The gain there was 1,380 from 359,611 to 361,000. Montana, the only state from which no estimate was made as of July 1, decreased in population from 1920 to 1930.

All Georgia cities reporting to the census bureau showed gains.

Atlanta recorded an increase of about 10,000. It lost a few striders, however, to its traditional rival in population, Birmingham, which gained 13,622. Atlanta advanced from 270,366 when the 1930 census was taken to 280,400 on July 1 this year. Birmingham on the latter date had 273,300. The Atlanta figures were for the city proper and not "Greater Atlanta."

Comparative figures for Georgia cities follow:

Albany 14,900 on July 1 against 14,507 in 1930; Athens 18,300 against 18,192; Augusta 61,000 against 61,342; Columbus 43,500 against 43,181; Decatur 14,400 against 13,276; Griffin 10,700 against 10,321; LaGrange 20,900 against 20,131; Macon 53,900 against 53,829; Rome 22,200 against 21,843; Thomaston 12,300 against 11,733; and Valdosta 13,900 against 13,482.

The July 1 figures, covering cities of over 10,000 population, did not include Brunswick, Savannah and Waycross, for which the census bureau said it had no records on file.

9,000 HOMES SAVED BY HOLC IN GEORGIA

The Georgia agency of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has saved 9,000 Georgia homes from foreclosure, it was announced Wednesday by Frank A. Holden, state manager. To do this,

Mr. Holden said, the agency has made loans of more than $20,000,000 in bonds and cash.

Of this total, approximately 3,000 loans involving $7,000,000 have been closed during the last two months. The exact sum expended in bonds and cash is $20,004,457.73, Mr. Holden said.

HOLC loans are available for home owners who are in actual financial distress and who cannot refinance their loans elsewhere, it was explained. Many inquiries and applications have been received for loans to modernize dwellings. These are not eligible, Mr. Holden stated, with the HOLC, but should be made to banks or other financing institutions for modernization loans as provided under the new national housing act.

Quintuplets' Birth Attended By Confusion, Doctor Writes

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(P)—Medical science today has its first official story of the birth and infancy of quintuplets, dramatic but simple account by that country doctor who was both obstetrician and parish priest to the five daughters of Mrs. Elzire Dionne on the birth last May 28.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, of Callander, Ont., wrote his report, unique in medical annals, for this week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Unreal and dreamlike," Dr. Dafeo described the scene to which he was called at 4 a. m., still sleepy from another obstetric visit.

Things were "strangely ready for multiple births in that home."

"I arrived," the physician related, "to find the home in confusion, no preparation made for confinement except a tea kettle boiling on the stove. Two babies already had been born."

The father was absent, but two neighbors were rustling up wrappings for the babies and building up the fire. Dr. Dafeo took charge of the last three arrivals, the smallest of the quintuplets, but not previously having reached the age of two months. The editor complimented Dr. Dafeo.

"Callander, Ontario, is far from being a metropolitan community. Its population is around 600 people and Dr. Dafeo is the only doctor there. Nevertheless, to him there came an extraordinary opportunity. With the traditions of medicine and an excellent sense of the ethical requirements of the situation, he met the occasion. His conduct of the case and his relation to the public in connection with it have been exemplary."

"As one gazes on the picture of the midwife and reads the record of the conditions under which these children were born and developed, one realizes to some extent also how futile is much of the superstitious and pseudo-scientific discussion that has been published in recent years on the problems of maternal mortality and infant care. There are many lessons for scientific medicine in this incident."

The physician had attended Mrs. Dionne at the birth of three of her five previous children, and had been watching her condition just 18 days before the quintuplets made their debut, but had not suspected multiple births, he said. A few days before the birth he had complained of blurred vision and nausea, and finding her in a serious condition with blood pressure above 200, Dr. Dafeo had feared her to be on fluid diet.

After delivering the quintuplets he was called upon for heroic measures to save the mother's life.

"All the babies," he related, "were crying fairly vigorously for their size. I didn't see how all of the babies could possibly live, so I baptized them separately. They were then wrapped in the only covering available, which proved to be remnants of cotton sheeting and old napkins, and then laid on the corner of the bed and covered with a heated blanket."

Then his attention was centered on Mrs. Dionne, the 25-year-old mother, who lay in bed, wrapped in a blanket of shock," said Dr. Dafeo. "The patient was cold, and the radial pulse had disappeared. . . . Solutions of hours and hours were required in a short time the pulse picked up a little but was still fast and weak. Slight color appeared in her face."

"Dr. Dafeo still feared she would not live."

"In spite of more pituitary and ergot, she presented the appearance of a dying woman. The husband was still in bed, and it was my duty to get the priest, as no one else was available with a car. Reluctantly leaving the midwife, I hurried away to bring the priest, a distance of two and a half miles."

"On returning, I found the mother's condition improving. . . . Two hours later she was definitely out of danger."

Then the busy doctor had more time for the babies. Blankets were heated in the oven, wrapped around the babies and changed often; someone brought a butcher's meat basket from a neighbor's. Three hours later the babies took turns with a warm blanket having a rub-down with warm olive oil.

For 24 hours the quints were fed with a few drops of warm water from an eyedropper every two hours. Then a few drops of 7-20 mixture with corn syrup, together with from one to two drops of rum. A meager supply of mother's milk was obtained around the neighborhood and added to the infants' beverage. When four days had passed an ample supply of mothers' milk began coming regularly from Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, of the Chicago health department, and full strength mothers' milk has been used regularly since, some from Toronto and Montreal.

Warfare Can Follow No Set Pattern, Avers Chief of United States Army

Many European military authorities are agreed that trench warfare is losing some of its importance and that the next war will be fought in the skies, and by fast-action, mechanized troops on open terrain. General Douglas MacArthur, in the following critique, expresses the authoritative American viewpoint.

By GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, Chief of Staff, United States Army.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—There is no fixed pattern to which the nature and methods of warfare conform. Every modern conflict develops conditions and circumstances peculiar to itself, and compels the adoption of special means and measures found applicable thereto.

Of all wars, the 1914-18 struggle in Europe was beyond doubt the outstanding example of this characteristic of individualism in situation, method and general aspect.

The most accurate generalization descriptive of the World War is that it was a conflict waged under siege conditions on extended fronts.

In the western theater this condition developed earlier than on the eastern, in which region the great campaigns of Tannenberg and the Marston Lakes, and the overrunning of Serbia and Rumania were characterized by maneuver, rapid concentration of forces, surprise attacks in flank and rear, and intensive pursuit of defeated forces.

Different on Russian Front.

Along the western border of Russia poor communications, great distances in the frontage and depth of the theater of war, marked differences in the quality of opposing troops and equipment, and above all, disparity in leadership, were conducive to the conduct of this type of campaign.

On the western front a distinctly different situation quickly developed. The available frontage, terminating in the impassable areas of the North Sea at the one end and Switzerland at the other, was exceedingly restricted as compared to the great numbers of troops that could be quickly concentrated by each opponent along that line.

SEEK TO SECURE MILICIAN AND SIMS SPEAK AT SEPARATE MEETINGS IN COUNTY

The battle for the nomination as senator from the 35th Georgia district again Wednesday night had the most prominent place on the local political stage as Walter A. Sims, incumbent, and Alderman G. Everett Millican, his opponent, took the stump.

Millican spoke at a meeting in his behalf at the Slaton school, and Sims, along with other county candidates, appeared at a barbecue in the Buckhead area.

The feature of the Millican address was an indictment of Sims for having served notice in the 1933 session that he would kill all local bills because one of his pet measures failed in passage in the house, while Sims intimated that Millican had distributed "liquor to the city hall and then got on the stump to declare he will remain sober if elected."

Recorder John L. Cone, of the second division, seeking re-nomination, and who is opposed by Robert E. Poole, scored "unethical lawyers, who are working against me," and added "Mr. Poole is simply qualified to fill the position of a judge, but he is crippled. I do not believe the people of Atlanta are going to elect a man to a judicial position just because he is crippled." He also scored W. Evans Chambers, former city survey expert, because Chambers recommended that Cone's division of the recorder's court should be abolished.

Promises Honesty, Efficiency.

Poole told the same audience, at the Slaton school, that he "will give an honest, efficient and faithful administration and I will not use sarcasm against police officers, attorneys, witnesses or defendants."

Bayard Willingham was elected president of the Humphries-for-Judge Club. Organized Wednesday night at the home of W. S. Northcutt, of College Park. The organization will sponsor the nomination of Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton county, to the Georgia Supreme Court. A messenger supply of mothers' milk was obtained around the neighborhood and added to the infants' beverage. When four days had passed an ample supply of mothers' milk began coming regularly from Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, of the Chicago health department, and full strength mothers' milk has been used regularly since, some from Toronto and Montreal.

Many European military authorities are agreed that trench warfare is losing some of its importance and that the next war will be fought in the skies, and by fast-action, mechanized troops on open terrain. General Douglas MacArthur, in the following critique, expresses the authoritative American viewpoint.

By GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, Chief of Staff, United States Army.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(P)—There is no fixed pattern to which the nature and methods of warfare conform. Every modern conflict develops conditions and circumstances peculiar to itself, and compels the adoption of special means and measures found applicable thereto.

Of all wars, the 1914-18 struggle in Europe was beyond doubt the outstanding example of this characteristic of individualism in situation, method and general aspect.

The most accurate generalization descriptive of the World War is that it was a conflict waged under siege conditions on extended fronts.

In the western theater this condition developed earlier than on the eastern, in which region the great campaigns of Tannenberg and the Marston Lakes, and the overrunning of Serbia and Rumania were characterized by maneuver, rapid concentration of forces, surprise attacks in flank and rear, and intensive pursuit of defeated forces.

Different on Russian Front.

Along the western border of Russia poor communications, great distances in the frontage and depth of the theater of war, marked differences in the quality of opposing troops and equipment, and above all, disparity in leadership, were conducive to the conduct of this type of campaign.

On the western front a distinctly different situation quickly developed. The available frontage, terminating in the impassable areas of the North Sea at the one end and Switzerland at the other, was exceedingly restricted as compared to the great numbers of troops that could be quickly concentrated by each opponent along that line.

NEW WAR IS FEARED BY AUSTRIAN MASSES

Rumors Hint of Plots To Extend Nazi Rule All Over Europe.

VIENNA, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Austria was appalled today by a new fear that her pleasant countryside, already scarred by revolutions, may be a central battlefield of the next European war.

The fear sprang from purported revelations of the semi-official Reichspost, which stated that it had evidence of plots to extend Nazi rule over much of Europe. The Reichspost said, without giving details, that a plot to extend Nazi rule over much of Europe was being hatched in Vienna, Austria, but in Tripoli, Algeria, Switzerland and Ireland.

It was alleged by the newspaper that an alliance between Germany and Jugoslavia is in the process of formation, that Austrian territory is to be dismembered and that out of another aspect of the plot, Germany is to obtain a southern port—Trieste.

From Jugoslavian official sources came denial of the existence of any secret understanding with Germany, but apprehensive Austria, its nerves shattered by months of bloody turmoil, felt little reassurance. Its despairing people expect almost anything to happen.

Vienna is like a city under siege. Martial law prevails, and the city of song has been converted into a city of gloom. Music and gaiety have fled. The people have ceased to smile, and the tense atmosphere of uncertainty never relaxes.

The apparently hopeless dissensions among Austria's own politicians and military organizations contribute to the uncertainty about everything. There is nothing substantial or trustworthy to which the people may attach their hopes.

Further Improvement Of Byrd Is Reported

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Aug. 28.—(Delayed)—(AP)—(Via MacKay Radio).—A radio report today from the advance weather base said Admiral Richard E. Byrd had made considerable progress in recovery and would possibly be able to return to Little America early in September.

It was five months ago today that Admiral Byrd commenced his isolated vigil at the world's southernmost habitation. Yesterday he saw the sun for the first time in more than four months.

Last week was one of the coldest experienced here. Dr. Thomas Poulter reported from the advance base that during the week ending Saturday night the average temperature was 62 below zero. The minimum was 77 below.

TWO KILLED, ONE HURT IN CHICAGO PLUNGES

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Plunges from Loop buildings left two Chicagoans dead and one dying today.

Miss Pauline Rudin, 28, plunged 10 stories to her death from a window in the Boston store yesterday.

Peter Ostrowski, 43, leaped or fell six stories to his death from the State and Lake Theater building yesterday.

Early today, Bernice Wojnarowski, 27, plunged from the 46-story observation tower at the Morrison hotel, striking a ledge five stories below. She suffered a broken neck, fractured leg and internal injuries. Little hope was held for her recovery.

MODIFICATION OF CODE SEEN BY HOTEL MEN

L. O. Moseley, manager of the Wine-coff hotel and chairman of the Georgia code authority in hotels, said Wednesday, when he returned from Washington, that he expected the national recovery administration to modify certain features of the hotel code which are hindering the business, especially in the south.

Mr. Moseley said that he found the recovery administration much more willing to consider difficulties of the hotel business now than it was last spring and said he expected to see elimination of many objectionable features in the general merger and reorganization of codes now under way.

Fierce Battle Rages In Chaco War Zone

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 29.—(AP)—One of the fiercest battles of the Chaco War was raging today at Carandaty, where Paraguayan troops, circling the city, were employing heavy artillery and bombing planes to girdle stubborn Bolivian defenders.

Carandaty is 50 miles above Villamontes, principal Bolivian military base on the western edge of the Chaco. It is a strategic point for the west-central Chaco and Fort Ballivan, final Paraguayan objective.

Under Colonel Rafael Franco, Paraguayan war hero, the troops reached the outskirts of the city last night, said reports reaching here today, and this morning launched a vicious attack.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A fortnight's lightning-like operation of the Argentine army against the central Chaco at an end, picked Paraguayan forces tonight were reported pushing double-ended maneuvers. They hope to reach the city of Carandaty, Bolivia's last major stronghold, Fort Ballivan.

Cabinet Crisis Looms For Spanish Regime

MADRID, Aug. 29.—(UP)—A cabinet crisis was feared tonight with the resignation of Interior Minister Rafael Salazar-Alonso.

Alonso, leader of his radical party, however, persuaded the king to withdraw his resignation temporarily.

Nevertheless, the government's position remained serious, with a crisis regarded as inevitable, possibly before the parliament reconvenes in October.

Salazar-Alonso wrote Prime Minister Ricardo Samper last night, submitting his "irrevocable resignation," because he believed the government was not helping him handle the difficult Catalonia and Basque separatist issues. He felt the cabinet had refused to take energetic measures against the leaders of these movements.

Samper vainly tried to persuade the interior minister to withdraw his resignation, after which he and Lerroux conferred with Salazar-Alonso. Lerroux's intervention finally persuaded him to withdraw, for the moment.

In the event the government should reject apparent low bidders, all the work will be given the Brooks-Calloway Company, of Atlanta, which submitted a combination offer for all projects which calls for expenditure of only $85 more than for the work under separate contractors. This company was low bidder on three separate contracts.

Apparent low bidders: Forcum-James Co., Dryersburg, Tenn., $49,500; 300,000 cubic yards work at Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Forcum-James Co., of Memphis, $60,125, 325,000 yards at French Point, Ky.; Edward E. Government Bitterly Caricatured In Painting of Artist Paid by U. S.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(AP)—An oil painting financed by government funds hangs in the Westchester galleries—a stinging caricature of President Roosevelt and his administration.

Another CWA artist, Paul Cadmus, satirized the navy, and this PWA artist goes straight to the highest official. The artist's identity is hidden under the pseudonym "Jere Miah II."

President Roosevelt, wearing a crown, is the dominant figure in the painting eight feet by twelve, his right hand holding a fishing pole, his left tangled in a maze of microphones.

About him are grouped distorted figures of his cabinet—secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau juggling streams of gold and silver coins, much of which falls into a trough through which pass silk-batted pigs; Postmaster-General Farley dropping letters and money; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace lightning a noose about the neck of Ceres, goddess of the harvest.

General Hugh S. Johnson is shown haranguing the figure of Industry lying bound and gagged at his feet. At one side, a tax collector is stripping the clothes from an unfortunate family. Opposite, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is cradling Secretary of Labor Perkins in his arm.

Mrs. Roosevelt is also depicted wearing a crown. There are two dolls, a

TWO MEN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH HERE

H. S. Spurrell and H. W. Hildebrand, both of Dunwoody, Ga., were treated at Grady hospital Wednesday afternoon for minor injuries received when their automobile, driven by Spurrell, crashed with another car at Stillwood drive and North Virginia avenue. The second car bore a Nebraska license tag and was driven by a woman, police reports said. It left the scene of the accident before the name of its occupants could be obtained. The woman driver was said to have been injured.

Police made a case of reckless driving against Spurrell and were seeking the unknown Nebraska car to make a similar case against its driver.

'Big Guns' in City Amateur Fall by Wayside at East Lake

JULIUS HUGHES,
STAN HOLDITCH,
DANNALS VICTORS

Hudson, D. Black, Hunter, Garlington Among Day's Losers.

By Roy White.

A new group to challenge stroked their way into a commanding lead in the first round of the annual Atlanta amateur championship tournament Wednesday on the tough No. 1 East Lake course. Only a few of the seasoned favorites survived the day's heated upsets and many of the former top-notchers will be found battling for silverware in the lower brackets during the remainder of the week.

It was one of the greatest days of first-round upsets yet recorded in city tournament history and the youngsters played an important role in knocking over the big guns. And the victories were no flukes, but were won by some fine golf from the very first tee.

Dick Garlington, runner-up to Charles Yates several years ago in the city tourney and a seasoned star, was the first to fall. He was eliminated by T. L. Johnson Jr., 2-1, when Johnson carded one of his best rounds. Johnson had five birdies on the first nine and turned, 5 up. He continued strong on the back nine and soon closed out the match.

Dave Black, a former Georgia champion, lost to J. R. McConnell, West End star, 2-1, in the second big upset. McConnell was three up at the back and increased the lead to four on the back nine, but Black rallied and carried the match to the 17th green.

HUNTER LOSER.

L. R. Hunter, semi-finalist in the state tourney, lost to Charles Dannals, the medalist, 1 up. It was not one of the major upsets, but Hunter was given an edge before the match. They were all square at the turn.

Scott Hudson Jr., former city champion, was the last of the big guns to fall before the youthful stroking of the challengers. Gene Gaillard, young Ansley Park star, turned all square with Hudson, but shot seven strokes and four on the back nine to win, 4-2.

Julius Hughes, the defending champion, had a tough time with Billy Street, Georgia Tech fullback, and won, 2-1. The Tech star fought with every stroke he had, but the steady play of Hughes, particularly on the back nine, was too much for Street. Pete Barnes, John Owens, Frank Ridley, Charlie Black, Brown Rainwater, Stanley Holditch, Josh Davis, R. J. Bicknell, Jake Starr, Dawson Ragsdale and Ralph Barnes were other winners in the championship fight.

The Barnes brothers scored a perfect average in the first day's play. Pete, the elder of the Barnes brothers, defeated Forrest Fowler, 7-5, and Ralph Barnes, the city junior champion, eliminated Morton Campbell, 4-3, in the championship fight.

Perry Scents Danger In Wood and Shields

English Champion Sees Pair as Tough Customers in Coming National Tennis Tourney.

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of six daily dispatches in which Fred J. Perry gives an estimate of the rivals he will meet in the men's national singles championship at Forest Hills.)

By Fred J. Perry.

Copyright, 1934, by North American Newspaper Alliance.
NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Two boys came to represent America in the Davis cup in 1931 and played Wimbledon as a preliminary. They reached the final and one defaulted through an injured ankle. The names of those two were Sidney Wood and Frank Shields. Thus, two records were broken.

The first was that, for the first time, the Wimbledon title was won on a default. And, secondly, it was the first time in history that the Wimbledon final had not been played. I am reminded, as the defense of my American title approaches, that these two boys astounded England by their great play. I also am reminded that, at a dinner during that championship meeting, an official of the Wimbledon club said in a speech that America had placed its faith in "wooden shields" and that, thus, the shields were not adequate defense in present-day battle.

His simile and argument in defense of it seemed to break down when Wood and Shields cantered through to the final of the Wimbledon championship, but he proved to be right when they failed in their Davis cup quest against us on the sand court at Auteuil. When we went into the challenge round, a month or so ago, in defense of the trophy against that same combination, the margin was very close—ever so close.

Perry Refuses $50,000 Offer To Become Pro

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Fredrick J. Perry, England, and the world's leading tennis player, today refused an offer of $50,000 from Bill O'Brien, sports promoter, to turn professional.

O'Brien met Perry at the latter left the court following a doubles match in the eastern grass courts tennis championships at the Westchester Country Club and made the offer verbally.

O'Brien said Perry gave three reasons for his refusal: First, that he was married; second, that he would be estranged at all the British clubs if he turned professional; third, that he was marrying Mary Lawson, English stage star, soon and would not want to do anything to upset that plan now. Perry holds three of the four major tennis titles of the world—the Australia, United States and Wimbledon crowns. He starts defense of his American title at Forest Hills Saturday.

BROWN BEATS HINDU AT PARK

Orville Brown continued his winning streak at the ball park Tuesday night with a victory over Jagot Singh, the Hindu heavyweight, in the main match of Henry Weber's card. Brown lost the first fall to a series of body slams, but squared the match with a back body drop and when Singh was unable to return for the third fall, Brown was given the decision.

In the semi-final, Father Lumpkin, former Georgia Tech football star, and Chief Chewacki, the rough Indian, fought to a draw. Brown, Lawrence Baxter, Kansas City, won over Ellis Bar in the 30-minute preliminary.

The card was one of the most interesting of recent weeks, with not a single dull moment during the entire show. Chief Chewacki used shoe polish as his latest attack, but it proved only fire to the fur as Lumpkin fought with every weapon he had, but could not master the Indian.

The Polish was smeared in Lumpkin's face. Lumpkin was offered the match when Chewacki choked and bit the former football star, but Lumpkin refused the decision. It was a real tussle all the way, full of fight and with neither wrestler having any decided advantage.

The Singh-Brown match was one of the cleanest in recent weeks. They broke instantly at the command of Referee Doc Lanford.

Singh won the first fall in 31 minutes with a body slam after he had been thrown out of the ring. It was somewhat of a surprise. Brown came back and won the second fall in 15 minutes and exhibited a fine assortment of punishing holds, particularly a leg twist. He applied the back body drop three successive times without losing the hold and won the match.

CHAMBERS WINS OVER SIMPSON IN BIG UPSET

Lieut. Hedekin Eliminates Red Enloe in Another Surprise.

By Jack Troy.

A hornet sitting down could not have administered much more stinging than Preston Chambers did when he "squatted" on "put away" shots in his third-round match with third-seeded Jack Simpson yesterday in the Georgia state tennis tournament at the Biltmore Club.

Chambers put plenty of sting in his chop shot, which he usually sent down the base lines, and mainly on the strength of it he eliminated Simpson in the tournament's outstanding upset, 2-6, 6-0, 6-2.

It was a great match, with Chambers, unseeded, rallying after dropping the first set. He raced through the second set and continued his steady play to take the deciding set in a ding-dong battle.

MECHANICAL MAN.

Lobs figured prominently in the exchanges on both sides. Chambers, who has the appearance of being a mechanical man of tennis when he's on his game, patiently gave job for job until he maneuvered Simpson into position to hit one of his inexorable baseline chop shots.

Those were the only times when Chambers seemed really amazed. At the proper time he'd suddenly squat and quickly cut across the ball. And his accuracy was nothing less than amazing.

Chambers would have given any player in the tournament plenty of trouble yesterday. He has a fine assortment of shots, but the real ace in the hole is that baseline chop.

Jack Simpson, who is the proud father of a bouncing baby boy, had nothing but praise for Chambers' game. "He played beautiful tennis," Simpson commented a father Monday, and mother and baby are doing nicely.

HEDEKIN WINS.

Lieutenant Dave Hedekin, lately of the Panama Canal Zone, furnished the day's other upset. Hedekin, unseeded, defeated Louis (Red) Enloe, seeded No. 7, 6-0, 6-2, 8-6, in a spectacular third-round match which lasted until almost dusk.

Like Chambers, Hedekin came back after losing the first set. Both played very fast tennis.

In other third-round matches Jim Halverstadt, seeded No. 3, defeated William Washburn, Anniston, 6-1, 6-1. Malon Courts, seeded No. 2, eliminated Bud Lindsey, 6-3, 6-3; Kels Boland, seeded No. 4, turned back Walker Reynolds, Anniston, 6-1, 6-1.

Bud Lindsey advanced to the third round by defeating Bob Maser, Bainbridge, 6-4, 6-3, and Washburn advanced on default of Glenn McConnell.

GOOD MATCHES.

The quarter-finals having been reached in men's singles, there will be four unusually good matches today.

In the upper bracket Courts meets Pierre, Howard at 3 o'clock, and Chambers plays Malcolm Manley at 4 o'clock. In the lower bracket Halverstadt engages Hedekin at 2 o'clock, and Boland meets Russell Bobbitt at 3 o'clock.

First-round doubles matches were played yesterday. Halverstadt and Courts, No. 1 team, defeated Court Boyer and Britt Knox, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Other first-round doubles results: Laird and Zuber defeated Dabney and McDonald, 6-2, 6-6, 7-5.
Simpson and Howard defeated Neal and Everett, 6-1, 6-2.
Nixon and Boland defeated Washburn and Taylor, 6-0, 6-1.

Williamson and Bobbitt defeated Alken and Carter, 6-4, 6-4.

Halverstadt, steadily improving Atlanta and Davidson College star, remains as the outstanding favorite to win the state singles title. He and Malon Courts are virtually certain to meet in the finals.

Semi-finals in singles will be played Friday and the finals will be held Saturday afternoon.

Ronald Keppie, tournament manager, hopes to see larger galleries at the remainder of the matches. Today's matches are recommended. The competition will be finely drawn.

Women Play Steady Tennis.
By BETTY MATHIS.

First round play in the women's division of the Georgia state tennis tournament yesterday was outstanding for the steadiness and general excellence exhibited by all players.

Outstanding for her play was Margie Woodbury, who played in her first tournament yesterday. Miss Woodbury defeated Louise Richardson, a well-known player, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. In the afternoon she met Gladys Vallebuona, third seeded player, in the second round. Here she met defeat to the tune of 6-4, 6-3.

Gladys defeated Jeanne Fuller in her first-round match. Jeanne, who played well but unsteadily, was no match for her more experienced opponent.

Mrs. Horace Collinsworth defeated Mrs. Dave Hedekin, lately of Panama, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. Today she meets Evangeline McLennan, city champion. Dorothy Roberts of Jackson, Tenn., defeated Margaret Glover, an Atlanta girl, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0. Although the scores do not indicate it, this was a hard-fought match from start to finish, with some points taking five minutes to be decided. Miss Roberts is seeded fourth.

Results of yesterday's play follows:
Etta Taylor Coyle, by.
Ardena Merriam, of Augusta, defeated Lena Whitman, 7-9, 6-2, 6-1.
Margie Woodbury defeated Louise Richardson, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.
Gladys Vallebuona defeated Jeanne Fuller, 6-1, 6-0.
Evangeline McLennan, by.
Mrs. Dave Hedekin met defeat at the hands of Mrs. Jane Collinsworth, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.
Margaret Glover, by.
Dorothy Roberts, by.

Second round results:
Gladys Vallebuona eliminated Margie Woodbury, 6-3, 6-3.
Dorothy Roberts of Jackson, Tenn., trounced Margaret Glover, 6-2, 6-0.
At 10 o'clock this morning Etta Taylor Coyle meets Ardena Merriam, and Evangeline McLennan plays Jane Collinsworth. Semi-final matches are scheduled for 2 p. m.

played this afternoon following the dedication of the new Good Hope High school gymnasium.

DIAMOND BALL GROUP IS FORMED New Orleans Wins Legion Opener

By Jack Troy.

A citywide diamond ball association was formed last night at a well-attended meeting at the Chamber of Commerce sponsored by the recreation department of the FERA. Technically, it is the FCRA—Fulton County relief administration.

It is the first citywide association ever formed here and its purpose is to encourage and promote good sportsmanship in diamond ball in Atlanta and Fulton county and assist the Fulton county relief administration in the promotion of the fast-growing sport.

August Fischer, director of recreation of the FERA, was elected executive secretary of the new organization. He was authorized to appoint a committee to act as a board of governors. The committee will nominate other officers for election at the next meeting to be held Wednesday night.

PLAY AT NIGHT.

Night diamond ball will make its debut under the sponsorship of the organization Labor Day at the new field at the end of Cherokee avenue, just below Grant park.

The Georgia Power Company has donated use of the field and the Fulton county relief association furnished the labor to place it in playing condition.

It will be the first nocturnal diamond ball series ever scheduled in Atlanta. There will be three games each night except Saturday. Two games will be played Saturday afternoon and two at night. Thirty teams will take part in the series.

The opening game Monday night will be a special one between the United States and the American Legion. The idea is to co-ordinate club athletics and assist in the scheduling of tournaments.

The initial game Monday night was arranged through the recreation department of the FERA, which has taken the lead in the promotion and advancement of a sport that in some sections has exceeded baseball in popularity.

The new citywide organization will place diamond ball here on a progressive basis.

FIFTY ORGANIZATIONS.

Approximately 50 city organizations were represented at the organization meeting last night. Included were representatives of the Georgia Power Company, Insurance League, Gulf Refining, Texas Company, Western Union, Postal Telegraph, Atlanta Gas companies, General Electric, American Bakers and Western Electric.

Prominent citizens will take part in the opening ceremonies Monday night. It is to be a non-profit, co-operative program for the benefit of the masses. The idea is to co-ordinate club athletics and assist in the scheduling of tournaments.

SINCLAIR WINS BY BIG MAJORITY

alienate conservative members of the party for the fall election, but two prominent members of congress thought otherwise.

"Sinclair has presented a definite program," said Senator James P. Pope, democrat, Idaho, "which is novel in many respects. If it meets with the approval of the people of California, it will be an interesting experiment."

"I know nothing of the issues between the democratic candidates in the California primary," said House Democratic Leader Joseph W. Byrnes, "but I fail to see how the result can possibly affect the democratic nominees for congress who are basing their claim for support on the New Deal."

In Mississippi, it was apparent that a run-off would be required to choose a democratic senatorial candidate. Senator Hubert Stephens and former Governor Theodore Bilbo were running neck and neck. Representative Ross Collins was a poor third.

With only 100 precincts unreported, Bilbo and Stephens were fewer than 2,500 votes apart. Bilbo steadily was cutting down Stephens' lead as returns from the rural sections came in. Collins was 20,000 votes behind Bilbo.

South Carolina staged a close vote in a referendum on question of modifying the state liquor laws. Returns from 1,208 of the state's 1,474 precincts gave:

Wets—108,716.
Drys—56,610.

Olin D. Johnston, youthful Spartanburg (S. C.) attorney, had 80,104 votes compared to 63,674 for Cole Blaise, former United States senator, in the race for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, equivalent to election.

A runoff probably will be necessary.

NANCY PAGE

Nancy Makes Pinafores in No Time at All.

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Ann was having a pinafore party. The little girls and boys who had been playing together all summer were soon going to separate and go their various ways. Lois decided to have a bubble party. But bubbles and soap suds and pipes are hard on clothes. She wondered whether she could not put the youngsters into "pinafores" or pinafores of some sort.

In talking it over with Nancy they decided to use the simple pattern which Nancy had and which she had used many times in early years to make pinafores for Joan.

The dimensions are given in the direction leaflet which may be obtained by following the directions given at the end of this column today.

It takes a piece of material 36 inches wide. The depth is 18 inches so the pattern is not too small.

The direction leaflet for making "Pinafores" may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Editor in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

ANN STEPS OUT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

If late last night when Nick Hamill, younger brother of her employer, John Hamill, head of Hamill & Harrison, advertising agency, finds her, saying he is bored too, Nick asks her to go to meet his friends at a hotel downtown. She goes and has a good time. All go to Nick's bachelor apartment for breakfast and he drives Ann home. Later Doug talks and warns her against Nick. Now go on with the story:

INSTALLMENT VI.

Waiting for a street car and on the way downtown, she thought continually of her sister, Jean's loveless, her childish impulsiveness, and her kind little gestures forbade harsh treatment of her. But her firm mind was made up.

Ann felt that the threads of her life were being drawn together. Doug was a finished chapter. Nick Hamill had telephoned hurriedly and said that he was going out of town on business. Jean's problem was perplexing and annoying. And the new work at the office kept her mentally on tiptoe.

John Hamill was bent over his desk. He murmured at throaty "Good morning," and did not look up. Ann went about her work.

That evening at closing time he called her to him. She thought he looked very tired.

"You must think I'm the world's worst slave-driver," he said. "It just happens that all these important matters have had to come up while Miss Wallace is away."

Of late she had ceased to regard him with awe. Friendship with Nick had made it easier for her to understand John Hamill, and yet in personality and character they differed greatly. Where Nick took life with calm indifference, John took it seriously. Nick laughed away the things that made John worry. Nick had known many women in his life and John Hamill's work had been his only love.

"I haven't really minded," said Ann, "because I've been so interested. When the chance you've been waiting for comes along, you don't mind the work. Besides, I needed work. I want to be busy."

He didn't reply to that. Obviously like Nick, he understood without details. He smiled. "I've really been paving the way to tell you that we must work tonight. Sorry I couldn't let you know sooner."

"I'm not going anywhere," she said. He twirled his pen round and round in his hand.

"Nick told me," he said at length, "that you were a charming dinner guest. Will you—will you have dinner with me tonight?"

She stopped very still and looked at him, trying to analyze her feelings. Whether she wanted to go with him or not, she must, of course. But actually did she want to? She knew, while thus debating with herself, that loneliness for Nick, missing his companionship, made her want to go to dinner with his brother.

They walked to a well-known restaurant, and across the white-clothed

table faced each other for the first time outside the atmosphere of the office.

"I'm beginning to believe," John Hamill said, "that employers should become better acquainted with the people who work for them. It's rather amusing when you think that people work side by side in an office and never really know anything about each other. The office is a separate world."

"When you enter it," Ann said, "you try to forget everything else in your other world, the worries..."

"The love affairs," said John Hamill. "If I may speak frankly, I have watched you take dictation when your mind was far away. It isn't difficult for a man to detect when a woman is thinking of another man."

"I have been thinking of a man," Ann said, and was suddenly struck by the thought that she didn't know whether it was of Doug or Nick she had been thinking.

John Hamill smoked thoughtfully and looked at the girl opposite him. "There is a great deal to this girl," he thought. "She is lovely but she isn't really thinking of a man. Her prettiness is strength of character and honesty. She is the sort of girl to stick to her ideals because she has moved to and fro in my office for two years and I have been too blind and too absorbed to notice that."

He hesitated at his thought, "that she is the sort of girl I've always said I'd marry."

The thought embarrassed him for fear that she might suspect his thoughts. He was not in love with her, and John Hamill began to wonder exactly what love was. To him her fine qualities were of primary importance and he smiled at her because brother Nick, likable, amusing and distinguished, had looked for his beauty in women. "This woman," thought John, snuffing out a cigarette, "is frank and sincere and beautiful. I've missed all the pleasant things that Nick has had. Ann has missed money. I believe," he mused, "that we could make a fair exchange. I believe I could love Ann Dryden because I think she could teach me the meaning of love."

A week passed. The weather was very cold.

Ann came home one night bringing extra work with her. Of late she had been thankful that work gave her little or no time for thinking and trying to analyze the recent changes in her life.

Everything since the new year had undergone an amazing change. Since Doug had angrily stepped out of her life, two other men had stepped in. Her little world had become a much enlarged world since knowing Nick and John.

When Ann went to her room after dinner to work, Jean came in and hovered over the desk.

"What's on your mind?" asked Ann, resting her hands for a moment on the typewriter keys.

Jean's bright face colored. "Oh, nothing. I—I went back to school, you know."

"Is it so bad?"

"I'm back in the work. I don't think I'll ever catch up and all the teachers are on my neck." She sat down and swung her legs over the arm of a chair.

"I met a boy some time ago," she said.

Ann turned her head. "Oh!" she didn't look at Jean. She looked out of the window and said, "You met a boy, and you like him. Who is he?"

"Dick—Dick Nelson. You'd like him, Ann. He walks home from school with me every day. I—he's the sort of boy I've always wanted to avoid."

"Why?"

"He's too nice. He's serious." She got up and walked to the dresser and rested her hands on it. Looking through the mirror at Ann, she said, "You probably think I'm just a kid. But I know my mind and I've figured things out. I—I don't want to fall in love with anybody! I want to get somewhere. Love would ruin everything but brooding."

"Still thinking of the stage, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"If you want visitors to stay a week, you mustn't feed 'em swell the first day. They think you're hintin' when you can't keep it up." (Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

SALLY'S SALLIES

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

What the Indians had said in their meeting, Allen did not learn; but if he was destined to lose his life, he found that it was not to be at once. Food was brought to him, and his hands were freed so he could eat manihot roots and some cooked fish.

As he was eating the fish he wondered how these people made their fires. There was a fire burning, but he did not know how it had been started.

When the chief returned Allen handed him his pocket knife. He knew that this would not be enough to buy his freedom; but an idea had come to him, a plan to use pencil and paper to make these savages feel that they could gain something by setting him free.

He pointed to the knife, then drew a picture of it on a piece of paper. The chief grinned and said that a picture of a knife had been drawn. Then Allen drew another and another knife, picture, and said, "Puc, puc, puc," which is the Kalapalo way of saying "upstream." He said "Kalapalo" two or three times, in an effort to make the savages understand that he would give them many more knives if they would take him upstream to the Kalapalo village. The chief grinned again, but Allen was not quite sure whether he had made himself understood.

As a further effort Allen drew a picture of an ax with a long handle. Then he drew a tree and the figure of a man chopping the tree. He hoped that he offered the ax would prove even stronger than the offer of knives. (To be concluded.)

"He drew a picture of an ax with a long handle."

"Maybe they have to rub wood on wood to make fire," he said to himself. "I wish they let me show them how I use my burning glass."

This thought led him to signal the chief. He pointed to his trousers' pockets, which contained a burning glass, as well as a knife, a pencil and two or three folded sheets of paper on which he had written a few notes about his friends of the Kalapalo village.

The chief seemed to understand that the prisoner wanted to show him something, and nodded his head. Allen pulled forth the burning glass and held it so that the sun would pass through and burn a corner of one of the sheets of paper.

It had seemed to the youth that half the village watched him eat; and now the other half joined those looking at him. A murmur arose when a hole was burned in the paper. The chief took the burning glass from him and carried it to his hut—perhaps to practice the "magic" in days to come.

"Sure! I'm not going to let myself be led away from my ambitions by a boy who's terribly sweet and crazy about me. I'm not going to let happen to me what happened to you! Gosh—can't you see what I mean? I'm not going to see this boy any more. And I like him. That's what get me. I like him and he's so darn nice!"

Ann laughed. "You've got your problems, too. You think I've wasted my life on a boy who wasn't worth it. Perhaps. But I certainly learned a lesson. Poorer but wiser."

"You're much and sat down."

"You're much wiser. You could go far in business. You're smart and good looking but you'll probably marry some boy one of these days with high ambitions like mine but with not a nickel to his name. You're like that."

"That's one of your predictions that won't come true, Jean. At least, I don't think it will." She smiled.

"You're really amazing. Where do you get all those good ideas?"

"Well, money is all that's important and the easiest way to get it is the best way. I don't believe in working hard if you've got looks. Plenty of smart girls have gotten far in their faces."

"I can't cope with you at all," said Ann, and she had ideas about the right kind of love, I can't help it. And I can't help admiring the right kind of man."

"The beginning and end of it."

"No. He's selfish and sulks and wants everything he sees. I'm just beginning to know the meaning of the 'right kind of man'."

"You're only kidding yourself," said Jean flippantly. "When a woman loves a man, she loves him no matter what he is. You love Doug. That's the beginning and end of it."

"If I were sure about that it would save me a lot of thought. Jean, I've got to finish this work. What are you going to do?"

Jean shrugged. "Skip out, if I can, to meet Dick at the movies."

"Why don't you bring him home?"

"And meet the family? No. I don't like that kind of thing. I've soon covered that I'm not as nice as he thinks I am."

Ann's fingers were flying on the typewriter when the telephone rang.

"Long distance," said a voice and Jean shivered. "Skip out, if I can, to meet Dick at the movies."

"Long distance," said a voice and Jean shivered. "Skip out, if I can, to meet Dick at the movies."

"Why don't you bring him home?"

"And meet the family? No. I don't like that kind of thing. I've soon covered that I'm not as nice as he thinks I am."

NEW YORK, Aug. 29. (AP)—

There were a few strong and weak spots in today's bond market, but the list, as a whole, closed with no definite trend apparent.

Transfers totaled $9,842,000, par value, against $8,214,000 yesterday, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues was unchanged at 84.4.

Secretary Morgenthau's elucidation of the country's financial condition and his estimates of the New Deal's costs evoked much interest and argument in the financial district.

While the treasury official said it was expected the gold "profit" of some $2,000,000 would be used ultimately to cut the national debt, it was not anticipated by banking circles that any such step would be taken in the near future.

Government bonds were quiet and fairly steady with the majority showing gains of 1-3/4 to 2-3/4 of a point.

The rails were extremely narrow, generally.

Most prime investment utilities and industrials moved in a fractional range, but Portland General Electric bonds were given a whirl with the 6s jumping 3 points to 45-3/8.

Studebaker 6s moved up 1-7/8 to 43 and Otis Steel 6s gained 1-3/4 to 49. The majority of steel loans, after yesterday's flurry, did virtually nothing.

In the foreign section German obligations continued to decline.

With a shrug, Tarzan surrendered. It was that or death. In prison he might find the means to escape; at least he would see Gernon and Thudon again, and there was something he wished to tell them. With military dispatch the soldiers conducted him from the room.

Tarzan was taken to the prison and thrust into the cell with Gernon and Thudon. "Greetings!" exclaimed the new prisoner cheerily when the guards were out of earshot. "What brings you here?" Gernon asked. "Twenty warriors and the whim of a woman—an insane woman."

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

The young driver is a problem. Boys and girls of high school age, learning to drive, have high accident records. Schools have a responsibility here. A special type of education is needed for this group.

U. S. CONTROL FAVORED OF ALL WAR MATERIALS

Survey Shows Leanings of Senate Munitions Inquiry Groups.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A survey of the senate munitions investigating committee showed today that a majority of its members favor complete government control of all war materials manufactured in the United States.

Several senators on the seven-man committee hold definite hope that evidence to be disclosed at hearings opening here next week—described by them as "sensational"—will arouse public opinion as to bring about government control.

Senator Pope, democrat, Idaho, a member of the group, actually says such is a possibility in that direction. The committee's investigation, he declared, however, to make a prediction that such a move would be made.

Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, chairman of the committee, and Senator Bone, democrat, Washington, both go further. They advocate complete government operation of munitions plants as a move to lessen the possibility of international conflict by taking the "profits out of war."

Senator Clark, democrat, Missouri, said such a move would be "very desirable" and a "great deal could be accomplished in that direction." He added that he wished to study the question more thoroughly before taking a positive stand.

In addition to eliminating private munitions plants efficiently, Bone argues that government ship yards "have proven more efficient than any private yard in the country."

Both men consider weak the argument that the government could not operate munitions plants with sufficient speed in time of war.

Neither Pope nor Bone will give much consideration to arguments that the government could not operate munitions plants efficiently. Bone argues that government ship yards "have proven more efficient than any private yard in the country."

Sterchi's Doubles Its Upholstery Force

With the addition to Sterchi's upholstery department of skilled furniture refinishers and repairmen, the staff has been more than doubled in the last few days. A group of the employees in this department are shown at work above. "Since the inauguration of the 'New Deal' it has been Sterchi's policy to increase employment whenever possible," stated W. M. Hicks, general manager, "and the expansion of this department is another step toward assisting the government's recovery program. The increasing desire of homeowners for restoring their present furnishings has made it possible." The new restyling department is under the direction of Paul Sillin, decorator.

Planes Poised at Los Angeles For Annual U. S. Speed Dash

BURBANK, Cal., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Victims of a 9-hour flight from Los Angeles to New York at 300 miles an hour entranced mechanics and pilots today as they prepared for the start of a tiny racing craft entered in the annual transcontinental speed dash.

The classic feature long-distance event each year of the national air races, which start at Cleveland Friday, is scheduled to begin here today, although pilots may vote to delay the race a day or so if they find weather conditions unsuitable.

From the grease monkeys, whose job it is to know every inch of fabric on the plane they work on, came a prediction the winner will be the pilot who can hold ship and motor together at 300 miles an hour between Los Angeles and Cleveland.

While the race officially ends at Cleveland, a pilot may continue on to New York and collect a bonus of $2,500 if he breaks the transcontinental record of 10 hours 4 minutes, established last fall by Colonel Roscoe Turner, of Hollywood. Some $7,500 in prizes have been posted in three land for the winners by Vincent Bendix, manufacturer.

While last-minute entries may change the picture, only one of the old guard of racing kings now remains as the starting draws near. He is Turner, holder of the transcontinental record of 11 hours 30 minutes from New York to Los Angeles as well as the mark in the other direction.

Turner will fly a 1,000-horsepower motor in a small, stubby racer, which is hardly more than a flying motor. Unofficially he has been clocked at 200 miles an hour. As defending champion of the event, he is the pre-race favorite.

The colonel's old racing rival, Jimmie Wedell, killed last year, will be replaced by Wedell's brother, Walter, a veteran flyer who always made most of the arrangements for Jimmie's flights. Walter will fly a monoplane, which has been monopolized by the list of winners for the last two years.

Two other Wedell ships may be flown by Douglas Davis, a veteran racing and stunt pilot, although a newcomer to transcontinental speed dashes, and Si Worthen, likewise new to the cross-country classic.

S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh (Wis.) designer and flyer, who has confined his efforts in past years to the closed course races for lower powered craft, has entered a special plane, as has Jim Granger, a pilot well known here, although not heretofore a figure in aircraft racing.

Benny Howard, Kansas City designer, became the first casualty of the race when one of his ships cracked up at Nevada. Howard, of Springfield, Mass., a veteran of several transcontinental races, was reported on route in one of the famous Gee-Bee ships, which created a sensation at the races of 1932.

Accompanying the royal couple were the princess' sister, Olga, and her husband, Prince Jaul, of Jugoslavia. The party had attended the music festival at Salzburg.

The manager of the Salzburg hotel where the group had been staying recounted that "Prince George and Princess Marina went about a lot together while they were here. They danced together in the evenings after dining with Princess Olga and Prince Paul. They also went shopping together."

"One day, Prince George bought a Tyrolean costume, with short pants—like a Boy Scout's. He took it back to the hotel and changed into it. Word had gone about that the prince had bought these clothes, and quite a little crowd gathered outside the hotel. Prince George saw the joke of the incident and, accompanied by the princess, walked out of the hotel and down the street, displaying his bare knees."

Princess Marina is a niece of the late King Constantine of Greece, and may be said to be a stepchild of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, whose sister, Sophia, married Constantine.

The princess is a tall brunette with sparkling blue eyes. She talks English perfectly and is keen on dancing and shooting. She and her future husband share a profound liking for music.

With her two sisters, Olga and Elizabeth, she has been in the habit of visiting London every season. The princesses had their cousin, ex-King George, of Greece, as a guide. He lives almost entirely in London.

In their round of gay restaurants and dancing clubs hovered the graceful figure of Prince George. The English prince, who the Greek princesses danced together frequently, was known that Prince George was fond of the princess, but even close friends and members of the royal family had no idea the young couple were enjoying a romance.

Princess Marina is said to be a great favorite of Queen Mary of England. She is closely attached to her father, Prince Nicholas, of Greece, who is widely known as a capable painter and author. The princess herself is a painter of no mean skill.

The princess is a very little formal stuffiness about the princess, who is an excellent mimic and a clever entertainer. She dresses smartly, but inconspicuously, and loves shopping in Bond street, where she can be seen almost any morning during her stays in London.

3 BURGLARS CAUGHT
INSIDE FILLING STATION

Before three negro burglars had had time even to open the cash register of a filling station they had entered late Wednesday night, they were captured by two radio policemen.

Radio Patrolmen Eugene Head and F. A. Turner, cruising in the Parkway and Highland avenue section, saw the negroes just as they were about to enter the filling station. They arrested them before they molested anything. The negroes gave the names of William Williams, 17, 2055 Fulton drive; Daniel Smith, 16, of 237 Houston street, and Joe Shay, 17, of 258 1-2 Houston street. They are held on "suspicion."

7 INSANE ESCAPES ARE SOUGHT IN N. C.

Attendants Forced Into 'Bull Pen' as Prisoners Flee State Hospital.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 29.—(AP)—In spite of a widespread search over eastern North Carolina no trace had been discovered tonight of seven criminally insane men who escaped from the state hospital here this morning.

Four of the seven escapes, led by Ed Deaver, convicted murderer who was saved by commutation from the electric chair, surprised D. A. Murray and W. B. Ables, attendants at the building and escaped with parts of rocking chairs forced them into the "bull pen" outside the structure.

The keys of one of the guards were taken and three other inmates were released. They unlocked the kitchen door to gain an exit, tore a hole in the screen and threw the keys back through the bars at Ables's request.

Besides Deaver, the armed watchman on the outside, did not see the seven men as they stole away in the darkness. The two guards from whom they secured the keys were eating shortly after midnight when the quartet of inmates surprised them.

Guard Bailey quoted Deaver as saying "If I come back it will be with my toes turned up." Another prisoner, he said, carried a work from a table as an additional weapon.

Dr. Ashby reiterated his statement made earlier today that he did not consider any of the men dangerous.

Deaver, a convicted murderer who was saved by commutation from the electric chair, was Tom Stafford, convicted in Wayne county of the murder of his wife.

The others were Tom Jackson, who faced two terms for robbery in Forsyth county which aggregate 21 to 24 years; Reginald Blake, who had completed a short term sentence imposed by the state prison at Raleigh, held due to his mental condition; Robert Whitesides, sentenced in Buncombe county for highway robbery to 10 years; N. S. Giddens, sentenced in Bertie for store-breaking, and Clyde Gaines, sent to prison from Catawba county.

Officials said that only Jackson, Gaines and Giddens are considered to have any degree of intelligence.
